Title of research topic	Doctoral research in the fields of social sciences in India With specific reference to Library and Information Science: An Analysis.
Abstract of the research work(max.300 words)	The subject of Social Science includes an in-depth study and evaluation of human behaviour by using scientific methods. Since the mid 20th century the term Social Science has come to refer to all those disciplines which analyse society and culture starting from anthropology to media studies. In the modern period, the subject matter of Social Science refers to the academic disciplines concerned with the society and the relationships of individuals within a society, which primarily rely on empirical approaches. Research and development are the index of prosperity of the nation. Research is a means of continuously developing a discipline. Indian universalities play a crucial role in the generation and application of new knowledge. Their contributions belong to four major areas such as teaching, research, conservation and extension. Research is the pursuit of new frontiers of knowledge in whatever directions and extent possible. The success or failure of a university is measured by the contributions it has made in each of the above areas out of which research is an important aspect. Doctoral research comprises one subset of research. The result of the doctoral research is presented in the form of a dissertation. A doctoral dissertation or thesis is a document submitted in support of candidature for an academic degree or professional qualification presenting the scholar's research and finding. It embodies results of original research especially substantiating a specific view, written by a candidate for the academic degree. Social Science research is expected to enhance the understanding of the society and its functioning. It provides inputs for policies for socio-economic management and development. Social Science research renders vital services to the society. Considering the value of social sciences and its research, the investigator has undertaken the present study known as "Doctoral Research in the Fields of Social Sciences in India : With Specific Reference to Library and Information Science.
