| 8 | Brief Abstract of the Research Work(250 Words) | The concept of financial inclusion emerged globally in the times of millennium and is defined as the availability and usage of formal financial services. Earlier banking benefits were only procured by middle and high classes of the society therefore to involve the deprived or economically weaker section of the society, need of financial inclusion arises in India. Y. Venogopal Reddy, (Ex Governor, Reserve bank of India) first time in India used the word "Financial Inclusion" in April 2005 in the Annual Policy statement. Financial inclusion stands for delivery of appropriate financial services at an affordable cost, on timely basis to vulnerable groups such as low income groups and weaker section who lack access to even the most basic banking services. As financial inclusiveness is a must for sound economic growth of any nation, it has become very important for the stakeholders to not only focus on the taking number of initiatives but also to measure the effectiveness of the initiatives in the light of both demand as well as supply side. Thus, this study will make intensive study from both demand |

For this study primary & secondary data will be collected. The primary data will be collected through structured questionnaire & in-depth interview method. For conducting the survey multi-stage sampling will be used. The secondary data will be collected from various reliable resources such as Government publication such as Reserve Bank of India, Finance Department data from both State and Central Government & NABARD and other Government publication. The various stakeholders are elderly persons, self-help groups, persons from the weaker sections of the society and employees from the banks, microfinance institutions, & business facilitators/ business correspondents. For the purpose of the analysis the tools which will be used are logistic regression model, exploratory factor analysis, confirmatory factor analysis, structural equation modeling, econometric analysis, and time series analysis. |
